NO. 41.

For Congress.

Hon. Charles F. Barclay, our present very efficient Congressman, representing the counties of Clearfield, Centre, Cameron and McKean, comprising the Twenty-first District announces his candidacy for re-nomination, in this issue of the Press. Mr. Barclay has faithfully served his constituency, with zeal and fidelity, in fact is considered one of the hardest workers in Congress. While other counties composing this District may have candidates we believe all will concede to Capt. Barclay another term. The only other candidate to announce his name is Charles E. Patton, of Curwensville, Clearfield, county.

Much important legislation will be up to next Congress and experience and wise heads are especially necessary, at this time more essential than for years. The voters of this district will give Congressman Barclay a larger vote this year than he previously received.

A Message from a Famous Beauty Specialist to Women Lacking in Energy and Vitality.

Thousands of women vainly attempt to improve their complexions and to remove blackheads, crows' feet and other blemishes, through the use of cosmetics. This treatment fails because the trouble lies far deeper than the skin. They are suffering from impure and impoverished blood. This condition is in many cases due to a catarrhal condition of the whole system, which finds its expression in sallow, muddy complexion, dark-circled eyes, general weakness of the system, and perhaps most plainly in the weeping of mucous membranes that is commonly called catarrh.

In fact this whole tendency is, properly speaking, Catarrh. Bannish this catarrh, and the complexion will clear as if by magic, eyes will brighten, faces become rosy and shoulders erect. Perfect beauty goes only with perfect health, and perfect health for women can only be obtained through one certain treatment—that which will cure catarrh.

Mme. Swift, New York, the famous beauty specialist known throughout the world and an accepted authority on all relating thereto, states that the one positive and permanent relief for catarrh is Rexall Mucu-Tone. Here is her letter:

"I can strongly endorse the claims made for Rexall Mucu-Tone as a cure for systematic catarrh. Its tonic effects are remarkable. It builds up the strength and restores vitality. If women who are tired and run down, lacking in energy and vitality, will use Rexall Mucu-Tone, they will praise as I do its strengthening and healing qualities."

Rexall Mucu-Tone works through the blood, acting thus upon the mucous cells—the congestion and inflammation of which causes local catarrh. This remedy causes poison to be expelled from the system, and the blood is purified and revitalized. Thus the natural functions of the mucous cells are restored, and the membranes are cleansed and made strong. We know that Rexall Mucu-Tone does relieve catarrh. We positively guarantee to refund the money paid us for this remedy in every case where the user is dissatisfied. It is a builder of vigorous health and a creator of good complexions. Price 50 cents and $1.00 per bottle. Mail orders filled. It may be obtained only at our store—The Rexall Store. The Emporium Drug Co.

Mrs. Howard's Will.

From Saturday's Williamsport Sun. The will of the late Mrs. William Howard, disposing of an estate the estimated value of which is from $75,000 to $125,000, has been entered for probate at the office of Register and Recorder Myers. Bequests of nearly $40,000 are made to churches and charitable institutions, and a large part of the estate is left to the executor, Thos. H. Hammond, Esq., who is authorized to distribute it to such "religious, charitable, educational and other uses and purposes as he in his judgment determines." A number of bequests are made to individuals, including several relatives, who will receive from $100 to $1,000. The grand children of the late William Howard, Mrs. Marcia Rothfuss and Godfrey Howard, do not share in the residuary estate, but the principal of the dower fund of $33,000 now reverts to them.

Churches and Charities.

The churches and charitable institutions which benefit by Mrs. Howard's will are as follows: All Saints Memorial church, $3,000; Trinity Episcopal church, $5,000; Home for the Friendless, $5,000; Williamsport hospital, $10,000; Boys' Industrial Home, $2,000; Girls' Training School, $1,000; Home for Aged Colored Women, $1,000; Domestic and Foreign Missions, $5,000; General Clergy Relief Fund, $3,000; M. E. Church, Emporium, $1,000; Sisters of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary for use of House of Annunciation, New York city, $1,000; House of St. Michael and All Angels, Philadelphia, $500; Home of the Merciful Savior, Philadelphia, $500. In addition to the bequests above mentioned it is provided that a Sunday School and parish house shall be erected for Trinity Episcopal church. Of the $10,000 given the Williamsport hospital, $5,000 is for the purpose of endowing a bed for dependent patients to be known as "The Amanda E. Howard Free Bed." The other $5,000 is to be out right for such purposes as the executor may see fit. It is understood the money will go towards the erection of and outfitting of a laboratory for bacteriological research.

Bequests to Individuals.

The following bequests were made to relatives and friends: One thousand dollars is to be invested for the benefit of Mrs. Howard's sister, Sarah Ross, and on her death the principal is to go to another sister, Olive G. Kintner; a brother, William L. Ross, is given $100. Item six of the will provides that twenty-four bonds of the Lycoming Improvement Company, of a par value of $500 each, be deposited with the Susquehanna Trust and Safe Deposit Co., for the use of Mrs. Ada E. Throop. The income is to be paid to Mrs. Throop as the coupons mature until such time as she arrives at the age of thirty-five years, when the bonds are to be delivered to her. In the event of Mrs. Throop's death before she reaches the age of thirty-five, the bonds will vest in her children, if any, and in the event of there being no children the bonds are to become part of the residuary estate. A bequest of $1,000 is made to Debbie S. Hockley and of $500 to Chas. A. Hockley. Mrs. Butts, wife of the Rev. W. H. Butts, is given $500.

Coachman Remembered.

William Warner, a coachman, who has been in the employ of Mrs. Howard for a number of years, receives a substantial remembrance. The will provides that he shall receive all horses, harness, buggies, &c., and all the contents of the barn, together with the sum of $1,000.

In one of the codicils of the will two nieces, Fannie Fuller and Lottie Rapp, are each given $1,000; another niece, Delle Northrup, receives $500, and a nephew, Jay Batchelder, is given $1,000.

Executor Has Full Authority.

After making the specific bequests, previously mentioned in the original will, which bears date Feb. 28, 1906, the following disposition of the balance of the estate is made:

There are certain intents and purposes which I desire to be accomplished by which intents and purposes I have made known to my executor. I therefore give, devise and bequeath all the rest, residue and remainder of my estate, real, personal and mixed, of any kind and character and wheresoever situated to my executor, Thos. H. Hammond, to be disposed of by him, without any accounting to any court or courts, person or persons, after the payment of all costs and charges incident to the administration of my estate and distributed by me to such religious, charitable, educational and other uses and purposes as he in his judgment determines."

Precaution Against Contest.

In a codicil dated Jan. 13th, 1908, there is provided the following:

"I do further declare my will to be that if any person or persons shall institute or be connected directly or indirectly with any attempt to break or test the validity of my said will on any grounds whatever, then in that event, such person or persons shall not receive or be entitled to receive any part of my estate and I hereby give to my executor power to declare a bequest to any such person or persons null and void as though such bequest had never been made by me."

Bequest to Mr. Hammond.

In the codicil dated March 11th, 1908, the following item:

In recognition of the services rendered to me by Thomas H. Hammond, I give and bequeath unto the said Thos. H. Hammond twenty-two shares of the stock of the St. Marys Gas company of St. Marys, Pa., being certificates No. 245 for twenty-two shares issued by the said company to me; also thirty-six shares of stock (capital) of the West Branch National Bank, of Williamsport and being certificate No. 331."

Mrs. Howard Changed Her Mind.

One of the peculiar features of the will is in connection with the codicils bearing upon bequests made to Mrs. Throop. In the codicil dated Jan. 13, 1908, Mrs. Howard directed that in addition to the bequest made in the body of the will, Mrs. Throop was to be given $8,000. In the second codicil, dated March 11, 1908, the previous one is revoked so far as it related to Mrs. Ada Throop and in lieu of the $8,000 it was provided she should be given the property on West Fourth street occupied by the mansion house and two double brick dwellings, together with the furniture. The third codicil, dated Aug. 30, 1909, revokes the bequest made to Mrs. Throop by the previous codicil and provided that she shall receive no portion of the estate except that provided in the will dated Feb. 28, 1906. It is in the third codicil that the bequest of $1,000 is made to the Aged Colored Women's Home and to the nieces and nephew of Mrs. Howard.

Will There Be a Contest?

The fact that Mrs. Howard deemed it necessary to provide that any attempt to contest the will should bar the person thus contesting from sharing in the estate has led to the belief being expressed that some of the relatives are likely to be dissatisfied with the will and that a contest is probable. A copy of the will was being made at the register's office this morning, presumably for the information of parties interested in its contents, but whether this foreshadowed any legal contest is not known.

"Isle of Spice."

Alice Clark, prima donna, of the "Isle of Spice," comes to the role of Teresa amply equipped for the demands that the part will make upon her, by an experience of some seasons not only in musical comedy but the heavy style of drama. She was for two seasons in support of that noted legitimate actor, Louis James and Madame Madjeska. She was also prima donna of "Isle of Bong Bong" and has spent a couple of seasons in vaudeville. Miss Clark will be seen in support of Charles A. Pusey at the Emporium Opera House on Monday evening, Nov. 29th, when that comedian revives the celebrated B. C. Whitney musical comedy.

Rally Day.

Sunday, Nov. 21st, was Rally Day in Howard Siding Sunday School. Had quite a large attendance. Rev. Bogue, Hon. Josiah Howard, Miss Spence, Misses Lloyd, Mr. T. B. Lloyd and Mr. F. P. Strayer were with us and all enjoyed the services very much. Glad there is such a deep interest taken in the Sunday School work. Much credit is due the good people of Emporium for the fine service held here. Trust it may help us to do more and better work. We must not forget to mention the collection which far exceeded our expectations. Come again friends.

"Isle of Spice."

The story of B. C. Whitney's musical mixture, the "Isle of Spice" which will appear at Emporium Opera House on Monday evening, Nov. 29th, is interesting and abounds in comedy situations of the most mirth-provoking brand, witty dialogue and brilliant lyrics. The piece is full of tuneful music, beautiful costumes, sensational electrical effects, and has an environment of lavish and exquisite scenery.

Hunting Notes.

Frank Caskey and son, of this place, who spent a short time hunting on Parker Run, last week, were successful in shooting a big buck. They brought the trophy to town last Sunday and found that it weighed 350 pounds.

Messrs. John Bodner, Michael Casey, George Mundy and Peter Flynnick, of Pittsburg, composed a party who camped on Cauley Run, the past few days. Mr. Flynnick succeeded in shooting a very large bear.

Frank L. Miller, Jack Miller, Clark Miller, Will and Arthur Miller and John Walkey, of First Fork, accompanied by W. J. Buck and son, of Ridgway, and Prothonotary Leavitt, of Emporium, have been spending their hunting season at the Arkhill hunting camp, on First Fork of Sinnamoning. They have been having a fine time and report game quite plentiful in that section. They captured a lot of pheasants, rabbits, two bear and two deer, making one of the best hunting records of the season.

Oyster Supper.

An oyster supper and donation for the benefit of Rev. Wm. Osgood, will be held on December 4th, at the old Thayer house, next to the home of E. J. Rodgers on West Creek. Supper will be served from 6:00 to 12:00 o'clock, p. m. All are cordially invited to attend.

Moving!

After twenty-three years occupancy of the present building, owned by G. F. Balcom, we are now busy moving into our own building, corner of Fourth and Wood streets, where we will have every convenience. Our readers will remember the Climax office building, which was fitted up with great care, having toilets, bath, fire places and a steam heating plant. When once arranged and settled we shall have one of the most convenient printing establishments in the state.

We know our readers will overlook any short comings in this issue, which we issue under great inconvenience. Our readers will remember Gen. Sherman's definition of war—moving is the same.

When once located in our new home, we shall be pleased to greet any of our friends.

U. F. S. Entertained.

The Union Friendly Society was entertained last Thursday evening by Mr. Max F. Balcom, at his home on Sixth street. It was the regular monthly business meeting and twenty-two answered roll call. After the regular routine business was finished, all present proceeded to have a good time. Miss Margaret Dodson favored the meeting with a piano solo, which was followed by a vocal solo by Mr. Edgar. A spelling match was the next on the programme, which was enjoyed by all present and proved that the members of the U. F. S., were good spellers. Delicious refreshments were served and Mrs. Balcom was very ably assisted in serving by Mrs. George P. Jones and Miss Jettie Wiley. After a few more pleasantries the guests departed for their homes. The next meeting will be held December 16th at the home of Miss Margaret Dodson.

The Delineator for December.

The Christmas number of The Delineator represents all that is best in the making of a magazine. It is sumptuously illustrated, and the pages that offer the cream of current literature, special articles by leading thinkers and fascinating descriptions of the fashions are decorated most artistically.

"My Principles of Giving" is a subject of special moment at Christmas-time, and wide interest will be felt in what John D. Rockefeller, Andrew Carnegie, J. Ogden Armour, Thomas H. Swope, John H. Converse, Nathan Straus and Evangeline Booth say concerning their methods of helping humanity. "A Home with Forty Daughters," by Mabel Potter Daggett, and "Attending to His Drop," by Eugene Wood, are two timely articles that reflect the good-will-to-man ideal. "The Gentle Resident of the Vatican," a near-by study of the Pope, by Kellogg Durand, is peculiarly fitting for the holiday number of a magazine; for it presents Christmas glimpses of Rome and the Vatican. Richard Le Gallienne's beautiful serial, "October Vagabonds," is continued.

The Kipling story for the month is called "Gloriana." It is superbly illustrated. Like the other tales of this remarkable series, it is compelling in interest and haunting in its strange power. J. J. Bell, the Scottish humorist, contributes a delightful story, "Deeds of Kindness." "The Making of a Hero" is a pleasant tale, well told by Lella Lyon Topping. Grace MacGowan Cook's serial, "The Power and the Glory," is continued.

The fashions for the month are reviewed by clever writer, in Paris, Berlin, London and New York. They are illustrated in full-page color plates that reveal the latest ideas for costumes of every sort.

"A Feast for the Eye."

Just describes the lecture to be given in the Baptist Church on Monday evening, Dec. 6th, Dr. Paske, of Chicago, who is traveling under direction of the Home Herald, (formerly Ram's Horn) will deliver an illustrated lecture on the story of Ben Hur. Thru the means of many colored slides, he will try to make Lew Wallace's masterpiece live before the audience.

At the close of the lecture, seventy-five colored views illustrating the history of the Prodigal Son will be thrown upon the screen.

Dr. Paske is one of the leading pastors of Chicago, and is a strong man on the lecture platform.

Views in the Philippines.

A stereopticon entertainment will be given in the High School room on Friday afternoon and evening, December 3d. A large number of views illustrating the life and industries of the people of the Philippines will be shown. The views are loaned by the Philadelphia Museum and the proceeds will be devoted to a fund for the purchase of a stereopticon for the schools of the county.

The afternoon entertainment will be for the benefit of the pupils of the schools and the price of admission will be 5 cents. Evening at 8 o'clock, admission 10 cents.

"Isle of Spice."

Allen Love, the author of the successful musical extravaganza, the "Isle of Spice," which will be presented at the Emporium Opera House on Monday evening, Nov. 29th, has written a new musical entitled "The Maid and the Mimic," of which A. Baldwin Sloane composed the music. The new piece will be presented at the Broadway Theatre, New York City, during the holidays. This new work should certainly be a success if Mr. Love's very excellent work in the "Isle of Spice" is any criterion. The "Isle of Spice" is now in its sixth season, and still playing to crowded houses everywhere. In fact, it has the longest record of any musical comedy now on tour.

Evening Party.

Miss Emma Ellis was hostess at a very enjoyable party, given at her home, on West Fourth street, last Monday evening. Many new and novel features of entertainment were introduced. Refreshments were served. Miss Ellis was assisted by Mrs. R. A. Eick and Mrs. Jason Loucks. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Parson, of Montgomery, Pa.; Misses Christy McDonald, Bessie McQuay, Marion Rentz, Vera Olmsted, Myrtle Lloyd, Edith Heilman, and Messrs. W. Briner, R. H. Edgar, F. J. Keim, Herbert Vogt, Robert Hoke and W. S. Stoddard.

Six O'Clock Dinner.

Mrs. A. C. Blum entertained several lady friends at her home on West Fourth street, last Friday evening, at an elaborate six o'clock dinner. Covers were laid for fifteen. The tables were beautifully decorated. The following guests were present: Messdames Charles Zarps, F. P. Strayer, Josiah Howard, W. H. Howard, G. S. Allen, R. B. Warner, J. D. Logan, J. P. McNarney, H. S. Lloyd, Charles Seger, H. H. Mullin, Mary B. Judd, Lizzie Hinkle, Ida Thomas and Mrs. S. S. Stoddard.

Basket Ball.

The High School basket ball team, of this place, played their first game of the season at Renovo last Friday evening and were defeated by a score of 33 to 22.

The DuBois team will play at Emporium this (Thursday) evening. DuBois has a good team and a good game can be expected. Our team has been handicapped badly in the two games that have been played, but now there is a brighter outlook and these obstacles have been overcome. Let everyone turn out to witness an exciting game.

"The Isle of Spice."

Uninterrupted success and quite indestructible popularity have, evidently, combined to make "The Isle of Spice," this season, more tuneful, more splendid, more generally attractive than ever. At Emporium Opera House in the near future.

Temptations of Evil.

Leisure misused, an idle hour waiting to be employed, idle hands with no occupation, idle and empty minds with nothing to think of—these are the main temptations of evil. Fill up that empty void, employ those vacant hours, occupy those listless hands, and evil will depart because it has no place to enter in, because it is conquered by good.—Dean Stanley.

Surely Hard Luck.

A LITTLE YOUNG FOR THE TALL HAT.

President Taft—This fits your present needs better.

NEEDS NO UNIFORM

PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES IS HIMSELF.

And the People of the Great Nation That Elected Him Recognize His Fitness for That High Office.

The unwritten law that the president of the United States shall not leave the territory of this country was recently violated for a few minutes when Mr. Taft stepped upon Mexican soil to pay a brief official visit to the chief executive of that republic. One of the results of the encounter clearly proves the wisdom of the tradition that the American executive should stay at home during his term of office. As long as he is within his own boundaries comparisons are not possible between him and other rulers. It is true that he comes in contact with resplendent representatives of foreign governments, and is now and then surrounded by blazing uniforms on full-dress occasions, but he does not meet faces of relatively his own official rank face to face, and his lack of a distinctive costume is not noticeable.

It appears that they have different ideas down in Mexico from those that obtain here regarding the matter of presidential trimmings. President Diaz, for example, has one uniform that cost 25,000 francs in Paris, which is a little less than $5,000. One can imagine the uproar in the United States if congress should appropriate such a sum for the official costume of the president. In Mexico, however, the chief executive would seriously lose prestige if he did not deck himself out with all the symbols of military power.

The Mexican editor who complains that Mr. Taft did not dress appropriately when he met Mr. Diaz and that he was not sufficiently escorted by a gorgeous array of troops, ought to come to Washington and peep in at a session of the house of representatives some warm spring day and note the many varieties of negligee which there obtain. He would probably return to his provincial town and empty his inkwell in an effort to express in the hottest Spanish his contempt for a so-called civilization guided by lawmakers of such fashion-defying independence.

During a recent administration some fears were expressed by a few apprehensive citizens lest a tendency toward display were being manifested in certain high quarters, and mutterings of "militarism" were heard from the rural regions. But these gloomy questionings were in vain. No one proposed a presidential uniform. Mr. Taft's wilted collar is not worrying the people of the United States, nor do his loose and easy clothes give the public any occasion to doubt his entire fitness, as regards personal dignity, for the office he holds. As long as he makes himself comfortable and thinks clearly and acts wisely there will be no domestic discontent with his dress.—Washington Star.

Democratic Opportunity.

"Blessed be nothing," Dr. Woodrow Wilson thinks the Democratic party is fortunate in its condition of poverty. Having no policies, no recognized leaders, no powerful financial allies, it has no entanglements. It can start with a clean slate and map out a program of politics for the general good. But still it needs a Moses to lead it and to obtain for it the tables of stone. Will Dr. Wilson assume the responsibility?

Our maximum tariff is directed against "undue discrimination," and the administration will construe the phrase sensibly, in the interest of peace and trade rather than in that of mischief, friction and loss.

It is strange that nothing new in the argument line against the tariff has appeared since the campaign of 1846.—Des Moines Capital.

THE SITUATION IN POLITICS

Leading Republican Organ Sets Forth What It Considers Needs of the Party.

"The Democratic party is now facing an unusual opportunity and a very great duty. The party in power has become entangled with all sorts of interests and has lost its freedom of choice. The Democratic party is free from entanglements. It is free to make a program for the general good if it will."—Dr. Woodrow Wilson of Princeton to the Democratic club of Plainfield, N. J.

As an analysis of the Republican situation Dr. Woodrow Wilson's words smack of cant. As a statement of the Democratic opportunity they are accurate. A great opportunity does confront the Democratic party. Of course, to grasp the opportunity that party must, first, get out of its present demoralization—get out of that disregard for party principles which led its representatives in congress lately to scramble for the local benefits of a protective tariff.

It must realize that there are right ways and wrong ways of doing things, and that the way that makes the citizen exist for the government instead of the government for the citizen is always the wrong way.

Thus getting out and getting back the Democracy will come again to stand for economy in administration, which with paternalism is impossible. It will stand for a tariff system whose single object is, as Dr. Wilson well said, "the calving out of all the resources and energies of the nation" as a whole.

Under present conditions this means reduction of the tariff. In a word, the Democracy will get back to the Cleveland position on the tariff and taxation and expenditure and the duties of an American government.

Of course to do this the Democracy will have to quit whooping for postal savings banks and old age pensions and national regulation of everything. It will have to be content with American principles as it was in the days when it won victories.

That is the Democratic opportunity. It is also the Republican opportunity. The danger is that neither party will grasp its opportunity. If either does we should get along fairly well. If both should do so our tranquility and prosperity would be re-established upon the broadest foundations. But that apparently is not destiny.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

No Tariff War Against America.

An alliance against the United States is the dream of a certain school of political economists in Germany, who, while not disapproving of the drastic tariff methods and trade regulations adopted by Germany for the protection of German industrial and trade interests from foreign rivalry, resent the tariff policy of the United States. Ours is the greatest market in the world. A free entry for German goods would raise Germany to the highest pinnacle of prosperity. It would glut her with wealth. What wonder that the tariff wall erected by American statesmanship irritates and provokes! Nor do we relish the practical exclusion from Germany of some of our valuable staples, or German tariff rates generally. In this international tariff game we have every advantage. We might lose the German market altogether and not starve. Germany could not lose the American market, either for selling or buying. She must get raw materials here and she must dispose here of her products. We have much the same advantage of all other commercial nations of Europe. At the same time they have tariff regulations against each other, and no two nations have interests in common. To combine them against the United States in a tariff war would argue a degree of sentimentality that might befit the middle ages, but is altogether foreign to our practical age, in which self-interest is the sole guiding spirit in the policy of nations.—Newark Star.

In the meantime Attorney General Wickersham and Secretary MacVeagh will take steps to prosecute certain officers and directors of the sugar company.

Three companies of state militia are now at Cherry, Ill., by order of Gov. Deneen at the request of Bureau county officials. It is feared that when the bodies of the dead miners in the St. Paul mine are brought to the surface some ill-advised move on the part of the miners may be made. The mine at Cherry, Ill., in which more than 300 miners are entombed is again on fire after an unsuccessful attempt by rescuers to explore the drifts and it has again been sealed. WARSHIPS RUSHED TO LATIN COUNTRY

PRESIDENT ZELAYA OF NICARAGUA HAS TWO AMERICANS SHOT TO DEATH.

PRESIDENT TAFT VERY ANGRY

Chile Upsets Settlement of Old Claim and Secretary Knox Has Given that Country Ten Days to Pay Her Debts.

Washington, D. C.—The lemon colored Latins are off the reservation again. President Zelaya of Nicaragua is shooting American citizens. He stood Leonard Grace and Leroy Cannon between a firing party and a stone wall, according to a consular report received here. President Taft has ordered the cruiser Des Moines and gunboat Vicksburg to make a flying trip of it and bring President Zelaya to time.

President Taft is mad clear through. He promptly announced his refusal to receive Senor Isidoro Hazera, the new Nicaraguan minister, and the state department practically recognized the belligerency of the Nicaraguan revolutionists and made peremptory demands upon President Zelaya for explanation of the execution of the two Americans condemned as insurrectionists.

Meanwhile Chile, the most tabasco saucy of all South American countries, has upset the settlement of a 33-year-old claim after agreeing to pay it. Secretary Knox has given Chile ten days to pay this claim, with the alternative of having diplomatic relations severed. This is the procedure which is the ordinary preliminary to seizing a custom house or a few ships of the debtor's navy in satisfaction of the repudiated claim. Chile has had no use for the United States since her war with Peru and Bolivia in 1876, when the Alsop concession raised diplomatic difficulties between Chile and the United States. The Alsop concession has been pending ever since in the form.

President Zelaya, on the other hand, can't very well talk back. He will not be given a chance if he feels like back talk. This freebooter president has more than qualified for the title of "international nuisance" vacated by Mr. Castro of Venezuela. Zelaya entertains the ambition to be the richest man in Central America and the dictator of its five so-called republics.

This time, when Zelaya caught two Americans fighting him and the American consul at Managua intervened, he was told to go to, or words to that effect. The Americans were shot.

A dispatch from Managua, Nicaragua, says Messrs. Cannon and Grace, the Americans who were executed for complicity in the rebellion, were tried at a fair court-martial held under the direction of the government. The men, it was charged, were responsible for placing dynamite mines which were intended to blow up government steamers laden with troops which entered the river at Greytown.

MRS. A. E. STETSON OUSTED

Directors of Christian Science Church Say She Worked Against the Interests of Denomination.

Boston, Mass.—The long expected climax to the fight between Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson of New York City and the board of directors of the Christian Science church in this city came when an order of excommunication was issued against this woman who has long been recognized as one of the most powerful members of the organization.

In their order the directors stated that a conference of more than three days had convinced them of the truth of the charge against Mrs. Stetson, namely, that she had worked against the interests of the church and of members of the church who were not her followers, and that she had persisted in teachings and practices which are contrary to Christian Science.

EDITOR AND POET IS DEAD

Richard Watson Gilder Was Head of the Century Magazine—Ran Paper at the Age of Twelve.

New York City.—Richard Watson Gilder, author and editor of the Century magazine, is dead here of heart disease. Mr. Gilder, like many who have risen to high place in letters, early showed his bent of mind. Born at Bordentown, N. J., in 1844, one of eight children, he was writing, setting the type for and publishing the St. Thomas Register at Flushing, L. I., when he was 12.

Better known as a poet even than as an editor, Mr. Gilder has published six books of verse, among which are sonnets and lyrics which have found a setting in the American anthology.

Alleged Murderer Suicides.

Lafayette, Ind.—While the jury in the case against Elias Ray, wealthy land owner accused of murdering Conrad Ortmann, an employee, was gathering in the court room, word came that Ray had killed himself.

Ex-Senator Gregg Dies Suddenly.

Columbus, O.—Former Senator John W. Gregg died very suddenly at his home in Waverly of heart disease. He represented the Seventh district in the Sixty-sixth and Sixty-seventh assemblies.

Farming The Wild Turkey

Novel Thanksgiving
Idea Suggested
By The Bird
Experts

the rearing of turkeys under semi-domestication—though in this case the species dealt with is the tame one. On this island, which is the most successful turkey farm in the world, the birds are permitted to run wild, and are not even furnished with any shelter, other than they can find among the trees and scrub. But plenty of corn is thrown about where they can get it.

In this artificial wilderness, as it might be called, which covers an area of about 4,000 acres, the turkeys get as close to nature as possible. Indeed, the whole idea of their management is to let them alone, interfering with them as little as possible. In the winter time their heads often freeze under their wings when they are at roost. But the exposure does them no harm; on the contrary, it renders them exceedingly vigorous, and they attain huge size, the gobblers sometimes weighing as much as 50 pounds when sent to market.

Every spring a few wild gobblers, trapped for the purpose in Virginia or the Carolinas, are introduced into the flocks on Fisher's Island, to contribute fresh blood. This is esteemed a matter of the utmost importance. Our tame turkeys are notoriously difficult birds to rear, under ordinary circumstances, being delicate and liable to epidemics—on which account many farmers have given up trying to raise them. The reason why is simply that there has been too much in-breeding, and the stock has lost its hardiness.

A number of varieties of the tame turkey have been developed by breeding, the principal ones being the Bronze, the Buff, the Slate, and the White, the Black and the Narragansett. The White was originally an albino. But all of these are derived from a single species, which is of Mexican origin. There is only one other known species, which is native to Yucatan and Guatemala. It is called the "ocellated turkey," owing to the fact that its tail is ornamented with eyes like that of the peacock. It is one of the most beautiful of birds, its feathers blazing with metallic reflections of gold, green, blue and bronze.

The Thankful Heart

Giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.—Ephesians v:20.

The thankful spirit is the true and sure source of a happy life. There are plenty of things to be thankful for, and it is wise to make an effort to find them. They are never far away. They are under our control. We are their masters. God made us that way. We may be in touch with very disagreeable people, but if we do not like disagreeable feelings we need not have them. There are many good things to think of with reference to such people. Be a missionary to them. Think how nice it would be if such a person had a sweet disposition and let your own radiate its virtues.

We can rejoice and be glad no matter where we are. Paul and Silas sang hymns while in jail. Why not? It was bad enough to be in jail. God was good to them. He revealed to them facts of eternal life. These were good things to think about, and why should they not enjoy them? To sing was a reasonable thing to do. God had given them something against the day of trouble and they used it. Why should not we? What is the use of being miserable when we can just as well be happy? God is near us in the joys and comforts of life as well as in our trials and temptations. We have good reasons to be thankful under all conditions of life. The sun always shines no matter about the clouds. Daylight is a good thing, but the best thing is, God created us in his image and after his likeness. There is a divine element in our nature that enables us to think God's thoughts in the facts of nature as well as in the words of Scriptures.

The natural world is a product of thought developed and governed by a system of divine laws that are always in force. God has planned and made laws by which we live, breathe, walk, see, hear, think, talk and learn the meaning of things. How our Heavenly Father has planned the universe for man's comfort and how thankful and happy man should be!

Mark the difference between the accomplished Christian gentleman and man in his uncivilized state and then be thankful for the Gospel and what the discovery of the laws of nature has done for you. Open your mind to see how God planned the laws of steam and electricity in keeping with man's capacity to utilize these forces and thus bring joy and comfort to human hearts. Go through your house, look and think as you go. You will see things of art and culture everywhere—books, magazines, newspapers, pictures, and conveniences, and works of art bearing the marks of the divine in man, which means you who look. When in the city you may look around and notice the buildings, and works of man, and remember that the people who have done all these wonderful things are members of your family. God is their father and he has given them a task you could not do. They are doing the work and you are getting the benefit of it. God has given every person a religious nature. It is a source of great comfort and joy. Are you weary? "I will give you rest." "Let not your heart be troubled." "My peace I leave with you." These are God's promises. They should mean much to us. Are you poor and homeless? Turn your thoughts on the Saviour's promises and picture to yourself the golden city; locate your mansion, receive your old friends, tell them to come in. Thankful? How can one help but be thankful? The Christian's spirit is the thankful, happy spirit. Every person should have it. It is the conquering spirit. It never meets defeat. No matter where one is or how sad the conditions of life, the hopes of heaven are always bright. The Christian, happy spirit always has something worth while to do. The wickedness of the world is round us. Throw a dash of Gospel sunlight along the pathway of the sin-suffering friend. A light in the darkness is what he needs. Smile on him. Let him see your gladness when he would expect to see sorrow.

The thankful spirit brings gladness in all conditions of life. There are beautiful characters among the needy as well as in elegant homes on the boulevards. If the rich can afford to adorn their homes and beautify them and pay the price I will enjoy their beauty and render thanks. There is a difference in men's natural attainments. They are God-made and are needed for the improvement and comfort of mankind. Without them there could be no schools, no true progress, and what would we do without the conveniences made possible through the labor of others. They are necessary to the comforts of our homes and in every department of the work of life. God help you to look and see reasons to be thankful every day of your life.—Rev. J. B. MacGuffin.

For the Thanksgiving Dinner

The delicate flavor of the pumpkin is developed only by a long and gentle application of heat, so when preparing it for pies always stew it for three or four hours, then mix it with the other ingredients.

To each cupful of pulp add two well beaten eggs, half a cupful of sugar, a tablespoonful of cornstarch, dissolved in a cupful of cream, half a teaspoonful each of ginger and cinnamon and a teaspoonful of lemon extract; add a large tablespoonful of melted butter and fill the paste full with this mixture. Bake brown in a moderate oven.

Although the observance of Thanksgiving is particularly a northern custom, the following recipe for Virginia pudding is given in the Housekeeper as appropriate to the occasion.

Turn one pound of stoned raisins, one pound of dried currants, one-fourth of a pound of citron sliced thin into a large mixing bowl and dredge well with flour. Add half a pound of fresh suet chopped small, then mix the whole thoroughly. In another bowl cream one-half pound of butter with an equal weight of sugar; add to this mixture the yolks of six eggs beaten smooth and one pint of rich, sweet milk.

Whip the whites of the eggs very stiff, then add them alternately with one and a quarter pounds of sifted flour to the mixture. Then stir into it the juice and grated rind of one lemon, one teaspoonful each of cinnamon and cloves, one-half teaspoonful of mace, one grated nutmeg and one-half teaspoonful of soda dissolved in a little cold water. Lastly, add the fruit, stirring and beating vigorously until the whole is thoroughly mixed.

Pour into a well floured pudding bag, allowing plenty of room for swelling, drop into a roasty pot of boiling water and boil continuously for five hours. Serve hot with a sauce made as follows: Cream together one cupful of white sugar and a lump of butter the size of an egg. When smooth and white, beat in the grated rind of a lemon and the whipped white of an egg.

Eleventh Annual REDUCTION SALE Sale Opens Saturday, Nov. 13, 9 A.M. Clothing, Shoes, Hats, Furnishings, Etc

AS HEREWITH ADVERTISED

I am confronted with one of the most difficult problems in my business career of twelve years in Emporium. In order to hold and increase the business of this store, with the class of people who desire reliable and well made clothing and shoes, I have, season after season, supplied my stock with the most elaborate varieties of new and up-to-date styles and fabrics, for old and young, regardless of how much goods were on hand. Owing to the ever increasing advance on all goods, my purchases this fall were unusually large because I secured options on large lines and then headed off considerable rise over the prices which I paid.

The remarkable backward weather has not enabled me to dispose of the calculated quantity of goods, and that together with our already larger stock than what profitable business dictates, compels me to-day to realize cash on my goods regardless of loss, as the cheapest and best business method.

Life at the Pole.

Life at the pole is a perpetual battle with nature, in which man is often worsted. "He was frozen to death" is the end of many biographies. While a man is in health they speak of him as "stronger than death," as if death were a watchful enemy always waiting for his chance. But life is on a large scale up there. Instead of the petty alternations of night and day they have the great seasonal succession, and, whether they are waiting for the long light of summer or the long dark of winter, they enjoy a keen delight in the prospect of a change such as we can never know in the tamer arrangements of our climate. The long dark does not keep them wholly inactive. We read of expeditions after bear and hunting on the ice by torchlight, but in the main their winter is given up to story telling, conversation and contemplation.

Dared No More.

"Yes," said the famous M. P., "I used to be pestered to death by a bore. My secretary was a good natured, obliging chap, and he could never find it in his heart to turn the bore away. Just as sure as I was in the bore was certain to be admitted."

"One day, after an hour's martyrdom at the man's hands, I determined to end that persecution. So I called my secretary and said to him mysteriously:

"Parton, do you know what makes Smith come here so regularly?"

"No, sir," said Parton, "I can't say I do."

"Well, Parton," said I, "I don't mind telling you in confidence that he's after your job."

"From that day," concluded the M. P., "I saw no more of the bore."—London Scraps.

Two Kinds.

The spectators in a county courtroom were waxing very demonstrative over the testimony of one of the witnesses. The judge sternly admonished them to keep quiet, but to no effect. The offense was soon repeated.

"Clear the courtroom!" called out the judge to the bailiff.

The latter stepped forth pompously and, striking a forensic attitude, said: "Them blackguards that ain't lawyers will have to get out. Them that is lawyers can stay."—Lippincott's.

The Lure of the Arctic.

Polar life brings strange revelations. A man who is a model of amiability at home is a savage in those high latitudes, where Mother Nature and humanity seem bent on revealing their crudest characteristics. When a man goes to the arctic first he dislikes it. If he is caught there one winter he vows to himself that he will never repeat the adventure. Yet when he gets back home he discovers that the "white silence" has a compelling fascination. I have never known a man who could resist the chance to go again, even at a financial loss. After twenty years of experience, if another opportunity came to me, it is doubtful whether any consideration would prevent my taking up the work again. Once the charm of those long months of daylight, the mysterious deathly silence of those long nights, the white glare of that brilliant moonlight across trackless wastes of snow and ice, has been felt a man is unable to resist the siren call of the north that has become more to him than family, home, friends or money. Gladly he takes his life in his hands and fares forth again into those frozen seas.—Captain Edwin Coffin of Ziegler Polar Expedition in National Magazine.

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens with the shipwreck of the steamer on which Miss Genevieve Leslie, an American heiress, Lord Winthrop, an Englishman, and Tom Blake, a brusque American, were passengers. The three were tossed upon an uninhabited island and were the only ones not drowned. Blake recovered from a drunken stupor. Blake, shunned on the boat, because of his roughness, became a hero as preserver of the helpless pair. The Englishman was suing for the hand of Miss Leslie. Blake started to swim back to the ship to recover what was left. Blake returned safely. Winthrop wasted his last match on a cigarette, for which he was scolded by Blake. Their first meal was a dead fish. The trio started a tent like for higher land. Thirst attacked them. Blake was compelled to carry Miss Leslie on account of weariness. He taunted Winthrop. They entered the jungle. That night was passed dozing high in a tree. The next morning they descended to the open again. All three constructed huts to shield themselves from the sun. They then feasted on coconuts, the only procurable food. Miss Leslie showed a liking for Blake, but detested his roughness. Led by Blake they established a home in some cliffs. Blake found a fresh water spring. Miss Leslie faced an unpleasant situation. They planned their campaign. Blake recovered his surveyor's magnifying glass, thus insuring fire. He started a jungle fire, killing a large leopard and smothering several cubs. In the leopard's cavern they built a small home. They gained the cliffs by burning the bottom of a tree until it fell against the heights. The trio secured eggs from the cliffs.

Miss Leslie sighed. "Why did you speak of them? I am still hungry enough to eat more eggs—a dozen—that is, if we had a little salt and butter."

"And a silver cup and napkins!" added Blake. "About the salt, though, we'll have to get some before long, and some kind of vegetable food. It won't do to keep up this whole meat menu."

"If only those little bamboo sprouts were as good as they look—like a kind of asparagus!" murmured Miss Leslie. "I've heard that the Chinese eat them," said Winthrop.

"They eat rats, too," commented Blake.

"We might at least try them," persisted Miss Leslie.

"How? Raw?"

"I have heard papa tell of roasting corn when he was a boy."

"That's so; and roasting-ears are better than boiled. Win, I guess we'll have a sample of bamboo asparagus a la Leslie!"

Winthrop took the penknife and fetched a handful of young sprouts from the bamboo thicket. They were heated over the coals on a grill of green branches and devoured half raw.

"Say," mumbled Blake, as he rummaged on the last shoot, "we're getting on some for this small hole of a coast house, and chicken ranch and vegetables in our front yard. We've got old Debbie Cruse beat, hands down, on the start-off, and he with his shipful of stuff for handiwork!"

"Then you believe that the situation looks more hopeful, Mr. Blake?"

"Well, we've at least got an extension on our note for a week or two. But I'm not going to coddle you with a lot of lies, Miss Jenny. There's the fever coming, sure as fate. I may stave it off a while; you and Win, ten to one, will be down in a few days—and not a smol of quinine in our commissary. Then there'll be dysentery and snakes and wild beasts—No; we're not out of the woods yet, not by a considerable."

"I must say, you're not very encouraging."

"By Jove, Blake," muttered Winthrop, "didn't say I was trying to be."

"But, Mr. Blake, I am sure papa will offer a large reward when the steamer is reported as lost. There will be ships searching for us—"

"We're not in the British channel, and I'll bet what few boats do coast along there don't nose about much among these coral reefs."

"I fancy it would do no harm to erect a signal," said Winthrop.

"Only thing that would make a show is Miss Leslie's skirt," replied Blake.

"There is the big leopard skin," persisted Winthrop. To his surprise the engineer took the suggestion under serious consideration.

"Well, I don't know," he said. "If we had a water background, now, but against the rocks and trees—no; what we want is white. I'll tell you—when Miss Jenny sets to and makes herself a dress of that skin, I'll fly her skirt to the zephyrs."

"Mr. Blake! I really think that is cruel of you!"

"Oh, come now; that's not fair! I wouldn't have said a word, but you said you wanted to help."

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Blake. I—I did not quite understand you. I really do want to help—to do my share—"

"Now you're talking! You see, it's not only a question of the signal, but of clothes. We've got to figure away on needing new ones before long. Look at my pants and vest, and Win's too. Inside a month we'll all be in hide—or in hiding. That's a joke, Win, me b'y; see?"

"But in the meantime—" began Miss Leslie.

THE PRIMITIVE

He at Once Began Experiments in the Art of Pottery.

just because we've failed to stick out a signal that'd catch the eye twice as far off as any other color than scarlet. Do you suppose I worked my way up from axman to engineer, and did not learn anything about flags?"

"But it is all really too absurd! I do not know the first thing about sewing, and I have no thread nor needle."

"It's up to you, though, if you want to help. My sisters sewed mighty soon after they learned to toddle. 'Bout time you learned—There, now; I did not mean to hurt your feelings. You've made a fair stagger at cooking, and I bet you win out on the dressmaking. For needle you can use one of these long, slim thorns—poke a hole, and then slip the thread through, like a shoemaker."

"Ah, yes; but the thread?" put in Winthrop.

"The coconut fiber would hardly do," said Miss Leslie, forgetting to dry her eyes.

"No. We could get fairly good fibers out of the palm leaves; but catgut will be a whole lot better. I'll slit up a lot for you, fine enough to sew with. And now, let's get down to tasks. No offense—but did either of you ever learn to do anything useful in all your blessed little lives?"

"Why, Mr. Blake, of course I—"

"Of course what?" demanded Blake, as Miss Leslie hesitated. "We know all about your cooking and sewing. What else?"

"I—I see what you meant. I fear that nothing of what I learned would be of service now."

"Boarding-school rot, eh? And you, Winthrop?"

"If you would kindly name over what you have in mind."

"Um!" granted Blake. "Well, it's first of all a question of a practical—practical, mind you,—knowledge of metallurgy, ceramics, and how to stick an arrow through a beef roast."

"I—ah—I believe I intimated that I have some knowledge of archery. But I doubt—"

"Cut it out! You'll have enough else to do. Get busy over those bows and arrows, and don't quit till you've got them in shape. Leave my bow good and stiff. I can pull like a mule can kick. Well, Miss Jenny; what is it?"

"Is not—has not ceramics something to do with burning china?"

"Sure!—china, pottery, and all that. Know anything about it?"

"Why, I have a friend who amuses herself by painting china, and I know it has to be burned."

"And that's all!" grunted Blake. "Well, let me tell you. When I was a little kid I used to work in a pottery. All I can remember is that they'd take clay, shape it into a pot, dry it, and bake the thing in a kiln. We've got to work the same game somehow. This kind of eating will mean dysentery in short order. So there's going to be a bean-pot for our stews, or Tom Blake'll know the reason why. Nurse up that ankle of yours, Win. We'll trek it to-morrow—coconuts, and maybe something else. There's clay on the far bank of the river, and across from it I saw a streak that looked like brown hematite."

CHAPTER XII.

Survival of the Fittest.

THE next four days slipped by almost unheeded. Blake saw to it that not only himself but his companions had work to occupy every hour of daylight. When not engaged in cooking and fuel gathering, Miss Leslie was learning by painful experience the rudiments of dressmaking.

At the start she had all but ruined the beautiful skin of the mother leopard before Blake chanced to see her and took over the task of cutting it into shape for a skirt. But when it came to making a waist of the cub fur, he said that she would have to puzzle out the pattern from her other one. Between cooking three meals a day over an open fire, gathering several armfuls of wood, and making a dress with penknife, thorn, and catgut, the girl had little time to think of other matters than her work.

Winthrop had been gazed at as hunter in ordinary. His task was to keep Miss Leslie supplied with fresh eggs and each day to kill as many of the boobies and cormorants as he could skin and split for drying. Blake had changed his mind about taking him when he went for coconuts. Instead, he had gone alone on several trips, bringing three or four loads of nuts, then a little salt from the seashore, dirty but very welcome, and last of all a great lump of clay, wrapped in palm fronds.

With this clay he at once began experiments in the art of pottery. Having mixed and beaten a small quantity, he molded it into little cups and bowls, and tried burning them over night in the watch-fire. A few came out without crack or flaw. Vastly elated by this success, he fashioned larger vessels from his clay, and within the week could brag of two pots suitable for cooking stews, and four large nondescript pieces which he called plates. What was more, all had a fairly good sand glaze, for he had been quick to observe a glaze on the bottoms of the first pots, and had reasoned out that it was due to the sand which had adhered while they stood in the sun.

He next turned his attention to metallurgy. The first move was to search the river bank for the brown bog iron ore which he believed he had seen from the farther side. After a dangerous and exhausting day's work in the mire and jungle, he came back with nothing more to show for his pains than an armful of creepers. Late in the afternoon, he had located the haematite, only to find it lying in a streak so thin that he could not hope to collect enough for practical purposes.

"Lucky we've got something to fall back on," he added, after telling of his failure. "Pass over those keys of yours, Win. Good! Now untangle those creepers. To-night we'll take turns knotting them up into some sort of a rope-ladder. I'm getting mighty weary of hoofing it all around the point every time I trot to the river. After this I'll go down the cliff at that end of the gully."

Winthrop, who had become very irritable and depressed during the last two days, turned on his heel, with the look of a fretful child.

To cover this undiplomatic rudeness, Miss Leslie spoke somewhat hurriedly. "But why should you return again to the river, Mr. Blake? I'm sure you are risking the fever; and there must be savage beasts in the jungle."

"That's my business," growled Blake. He paused a moment, and added, rather less ungraciously: "Well, if you care, it's this way—I'm going to keep on looking for ore. Give me a little iron ore, and we'll mighty soon have a lot of steel knives and arrow-heads that'll amount to something. How're you going to bag anything worth while with bamboo tips on our arrows? Those bear tusks are a fizzle."

"So you will continue to risk your life for us? I think that is very brave and generous, Mr. Blake!"

"How's that?" demanded Blake, not a little puzzled. He was fully conscious of the risk; but this was the first intimation he had received or conceived that his motives were other than selfish—"Um-m! So that's the ticket. Getting generous, eh?"

"Not getting—you are generous! When I think of all you have done for us! Had it not been for you, I am sure we should have died that first day ashore."

"Well, don't blame me. I couldn't have let a dog die that way; and then, a fellow needs a Man Friday for this sort of thing. As for you, I haven't always had the luck to be favored with ladies' company."

"Thank you, Mr. Blake. I quite appreciate the compliment. But now, I must put on supper."

Blake followed her graceful movements with an intentness which, in turn, drew Winthrop's attention to himself. The Englishman smiled in a disagreeable manner, and resumed his work on the bows, with the look of one mentally preoccupied. After supper he found occasion to spend some little time among the bamboos.

When at sunset Miss Leslie withdrew into the baobab, Winthrop somewhat officiously insisted upon helping her set up her screen in the entrance. As he did so, he took the opportunity to hand her a bamboo knife, and to draw her attention to several double-pointed bamboo stakes which he had hidden under the litter.

"What is it?" she asked, troubled by his furtive glance back at Blake.

"Merely precaution, you know," he whispered. "The ground in there is quite soft. It will be no trouble, I fancy, to put up the stakes, with their points inclined toward the entrance."

"But why?"

"Not so loud, Miss Genevieve! It struck me that if any one should seek to enter in the night, he would find these stakes decidedly unpleasant. Be careful how you handle them. As you see, the sharper points, which are to be set uppermost, run off into a razor edge. Put them up now, before it grows too dark. You know how ninplins are set—that shape. Good-night! You see, with these to guard the entrance, you need not be afraid to go to sleep at once."

"Thank you," she whispered, and began to thrust the stakes into the ground as he had directed.

He had not been mistaken. The vague doubts and fears which she already entertained would have kept her awake throughout the night, but thanks to the sense of security afforded by the sword-bayonets of her silent little sentries, the girl was soon able to calm herself, and was fast asleep long before Blake awakened Winthrop.

Immediately after breakfast, Blake—who had spent his watch in grinding the edges from a stone and experimenting with split and bent twigs—put Winthrop's keys in the fire, and began an attempt to shape them into a knife-blade. To heat the steel to the required temperature, he used a bamboo blowpipe, with his lungs for bellows.

Winthrop turned away with an indifferent bearing; but Miss Leslie found herself compelled to stop and admire his dexterous use of his rude tools.

Always Light In the Sky.

"We go," says the Scientific American, "is never dark. This, however, is not due to the sun, but to the stars. The Milky Way is above the horizon in summer in our latitude, and it gives a great deal of light by night, enough to make the night sky of that time brighter than when it is not a part of our night sky, as is the case in winter. Then, too, the stars which cannot be seen by the unaided eye give us much light. The stars which are not visible to the eye give more light than those which are visible."

If you are a business man, did you ever think of the field of opportunity that advertising opens to you? There is almost no limit to the possibilities of your business if you study how to turn trade into your store. If you are not getting your share of the business of your community there's a reason. People go where they are attracted—where they know what they can get and how much it is sold for. If you make direct statements in your advertising see to it that you are able to fulfill every promise you make. You will add to your business reputation and hold your customers. It will not cost as much to run your ad in this paper as you think. It is the persistent advertiser who gets there. Have something in the paper every issue, no matter how small. We will be pleased to quote you our advertising rates, particularly on the year's business.

MAKE YOUR APPEAL

to the public through the columns of this paper. With every issue it carries its message into the homes and lives of the people. Your competitor has his store news in this issue. Why don't you have yours? Don't blame the people for flocking to his store. They know what he has.

The Home Paper

issue will prove a welcome visitor to every member of the family. It should head your list of newspaper and periodical subscriptions.

Enlarging Your Business

If you are in business and you want to make more money you will read every word we have to say. Are you spending your money for advertising in haphazard fashion as if intended for charity, or do you advertise for direct results?

Did you ever stop to think how your advertising can be made a source of profit to you, and how its value can be measured in dollars and cents. If you have not, you are throwing money away.

Advertising is a modern business necessity, but must be conducted on business principles. If you are not satisfied with your advertising you should set aside a certain amount of money to be spent annually, and then carefully note the effect it has in increasing your volume of business; whether a 10, 20 or 30 per cent increase. If you watch this gain from year to year you will become intensely interested in your advertising, and how you can make it enlarge your business.

If you try this method we believe you will not want to let a single issue of this paper go to press without something from your store.

If you can sell goods over the counter we can also show you why this paper will best serve your interests when you want to reach the people of this community.

JOB PRINTING

We can do the finest class of printing, and we can do that class just a little better than seems necessary. Prompt delivery always.

Breezy County News

FIRST FORK

Ralph M. Williams was born in Ashfield, Franklin county, Mass., May 26, 1835, and came to First Fork, then Clinton county, Pa., in Oct. 1856, to work in the pine lumber woods, which occupation he followed for a good many years. On Nov. 17th, 1859, he was married to Miss Helen M. Bailey, the youngest daughter of Hon. Jas. Bailey, and this date (Nov. 17th) being their Golden Wedding anniversary. As neither of their sons could be present, Almon J., of Riverdale, Mich., being very busy this month, as overseer of the agricultural department of the St. Louis Beet Sugar Co., and Fred being off on his annual camping expedition, and the health of the parties being quite precarious, no attempt was made for a great celebration of the event. Several nice presents were received from parties at a distance and letters of regret and congratulations from distant friends. The groom wore the vest in which he was married, 50 years ago. The style of the vest differs somewhat from the fashionable cut of to-day. I believe there are only five persons now living who were present at the wedding, fifty years ago, viz: Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Williams, Rev. Jas. Hunter, who "tied the knot," and Israel and Alfonso Bailey, of Sinnamahoning.

There are over fifty hunters camped and boarding within a radius of six miles of this place, but have not made any very serious inroads on the deer and bear, though a great many have been sighted. There are a dozen hunters stopping with Wes Burlingame, and they got two bucks, the last of the week. L. C. Wykoff's gang of hunters killed a two year old buck on Thursday. C. E. Logue killed the fattest bear ever on Wednesday, and now bear steak is on the menu at their camp. J. H. Zinco, of Bradford, Pa., returned home on Thursday, after a hunt of a couple of weeks, at C. E. Logue's.

Mr. Walkey, teacher of Miller school, was calling on friends here Saturday, on his way up to Berfield's, to attend a Social, Saturday evening.

FIRST FORK.

A nice tracking snow fell on the 15. William J. Leavitt, of Emporium, spent a few days hunting in this vicinity. He's a jolly good fellow and his many friends were glad to greet him, before he started for home, Friday.

We noticed James Council behind the counter, as usual, having just returned from his wedding trip. The people on the Fork wish the happy couple a happy and prosperous life.

We earnestly hope that our two correspondents from First Fork, and the two from Sinnamahoning, will continue their news letters in the Press. Let us have our end of the county alive and well represented in this well known paper.

The pie social held at the Berfield school house, last Saturday night, was a success. They realized over $16.00 for their minister and those present report a good time.

Hank Caldwell, of Sinnamahoning, visited relatives on Sunday.

Howard Hawn, who has been employed in a mill at Halls, Pa., is spending some time at his home.

The following is a report of the first week of deer season, of three crews:—L. C. Wykoff, one deer; A. E. Smith, one deer, five prongs, 200 pounds; F. L. Miller, two deer and two bear. We must not forget to state that one of these deer was killed on Saturday by Arthur Miller, a school boy, aged 15.—In addition to the above, many rabbits and pheasants have been killed. A pie social will be held at the Haynes school house, Saturday night, Nov. 27. Let everybody come out and help a good cause along. All ladies please bring a pie, and every gentleman buy one, and it will be greatly appreciated. Don't forget the time—this coming Saturday night.

FAIR EXCHANGE

A New Back for an Old One. How it Can be Done in Emporium.

The back aches at times with a dull, indescribable feeling, making you weary and restless; piercing pains shoot across the region of the kidneys, and again the loins are so lame to stoop is agony. No use to rub or apply a plaster to the back in this condition. You cannot reach the cause. Exchange the bad back for a new and stronger one. Emporium residents would do well to profit by the following example:

Mrs. Geo. E. Weiss, 412 N. St. Michael St., St. Marys, Pa., says: "I suffered for a long time from kidney complaint and backache. I had headaches and dizzy spells, was unable to get up without supporting myself and could not bend or stoop without suffering intensely. The kidney secretions were also unnatural and plainly showed that my kidneys were disordered. I became very much discouraged but finally procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills on a neighbor's recommendation. My strength and ambition soon returned and the pains and aches disappeared. I cannot speak too highly of Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.
